Luncheon Presentation on Overhauling the U.S. Poverty Measure

A brief presentation will be given over lunch examining the criticisms of the current U.S. poverty measure; recent efforts to change it; and recommendations for an improved poverty measure based on a reasonable threshold and income definition that measures progress (or regression) over time and includes multiple measures of economic need. Most significantly, the discussion will focus on a political strategy to secure Congressional action mandating such action.

- Rebecca Blank, Brookings Institution presentation and paper

2:00 – 5:00pm

Forging New Partnerships for Advancing Anti-Poverty and Economic Opportunity Efforts: The Challenges & Opportunities Presented by Addressing Climate Change

This session will explore how current climate-change policy efforts offer a timely opportunity for partnership in advancing anti-poverty and economic opportunity agendas. A diverse panel of experts will brief grantmakers on how climate-change policies can be fiscally responsible, drive economic growth and treat poor families fairly and make the case for why grantmakers and advocates need to build partnerships with the environmental community to advance their anti-poverty and economic opportunity efforts.

- Ami Nagle, Consultant to the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation (Moderator)
